Suffering Described As Torture
Relieved by Black-Draught

Rossville, Ga.—Mrs. Kate Lee Ables of this place, writes: "My husband is an engineer, and once while lifting, he injured himself with a piece of heavy machinery, across the abdomen. He was so sore he could not bear to press on himself at all, on chest or abdomen. He weighed 165 lbs., and fell off until he weighed 110 lbs., in two weeks.

He became constipated and it looked like he would die. We had three different doctors, yet with all their medicine, his bowels failed to act. He would turn up a ten-cent bottle of castor oil, and drink it two or three days in succession. He did this yet without result. We became desperate, he suffered so. He was swollen terribly. He told me his suffering could only be described as torture.

I sent and bought Theodor's Black-Draught. I made him take a big dose, and when it began to act he fainted, he was in such misery, but he got relief and began to mend at once. He got well, and we both feel he owes his life to Theodor's Black-Draught."

PROMINENT MEN IN XMAS APPEAL FOR ARMENIANS

Former President Taft Leads in Eloquent Plea for Support of Near East Relief.

To save the lives of 800,000 people in Armenia and other western Asian countries and to care for more than 250,000 orphans who are homeless there, former President William Howard Taft, Henry Morgenthau, former ambassador to Turkey, and Alexander J. Hemphill, the New York banker, as members of the Executive Committee of Near East Relief, the former American Committee on Armenian and Syrian Relief, have issued a Christmas appeal for continued support of this organization and its work.

Near East Relief is now operating under a government charter and is practically the only relief organization in the field, the work of which has been severely hampered by the withdrawal of the Christmas fund, a classic of its kind, is as follows:

"Dear Friend—Another little child has shivered up and died. The mother, wearing back gaunt and cold from the desert, has put down the tiny little bones with those that strew the road and has sunk beside them, never to rise again.

"Only a little child and a mother out on the black Armenian road! But what is that vision hovering there and what is that voice the cold winds hear to the east of our souls?—I was hungry and ye gave me no meat; I was naked and ye clothed me not."

"Today—yes, today—while we are preparing our gifts for Christmas, many more of these little children—not a hundred nor a thousand, but 250,000 of them—are still wandering unheeded for and alone in that dead land, their weakened bodies clinging in fear to their ragged bones, and they are crying out with aching breath, 'I am hungry! I am hungry!' And the voice of one who is as lonely as we prepare gifts to celebrate his birthday comes again to the ears of our souls—'I am hungry! I am hungry! I am hungry!'"

"Now, the children and the mothers in Armenia are suffering the winter. Just human necessities they are, not proceeds, many of them, from the elements by which the dignity of races. The most favored have merely shivered and died. How shall we sing our Christmas songs and laugh and light the candles and give beautiful gifts while that pleading voice cries in the ears of our souls, 'I am naked and cold—naked and cold?'"

"But we can feed and clothe these perishing ones—some of them—before it is too late. Herbert Hoover has called from the Caucasus, 'It is impossible that the loss of 200,000 lives can at this day be prevented, but the remaining 800,000 can possibly be saved. They need not starve and freeze and die if we will save them. In the name of him who saw the multitude as sheep not having a shepherd and was moved with compassion toward them, who exclaimed when his disciples would turn them away, 'They need not depart, give ye them to eat!' open your heart and purse and give to these Christians whom he loves, who are suffering for him and with whom he is suffering. They need not die. Give ye them to eat."

"Fifteen dollars a month will provide food, clothes, shelter and education toward self support for one orphan child."

"Ten dollars a month will provide food, clothes and shelter for one orphan child."

"Five dollars a month will provide food for one orphan child."

"He fed 5,000 hungry people in the wilderness and said to his followers, 'The things that I do shall ye do also and greater things than these shall ye do.' Today nearly 800,000 destitute Armenians—his people—need food and clothing."

"He took little children in his arms and blessed them. Today will you take one or more of these sad, cold, hungry little children of Armenia into your arms and heart in his name and give them food and warmth and life?"

"What a joyful Christmas it will be when with your songs and your laughter you hear a voice of wondrous sweetness speaking to you, 'O, ye blessed of my Father, I was hungry and ye gave me meat; I was naked and ye clothed me; inasmuch as ye have done it to these, my brethren, ye have done it to me.'"

"In his name."

"Faithfully yours,"

"WILLIAM H. TAFT."

"ALEXANDER J. HEMPHILL."

"HENRY MORGENTHAU."

BANDITS ATTACK HARBOR, THINKING HIM ARMENIAN

Because he and members of his party were mistaken for Armenians Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord, head of the American Mission to Armenia, narrowly escaped death at the hand of a band of marauding bandits a few miles from Mount Ararat. Major General Harbord has just returned to the United States and made a report to President Wilson on the distressing conditions in the Near East where American charity is saving thousands of lives through the Near East Relief.

The Office Boy's Trouble

The office boy had been sitting for hours at a typewriter, gazing vainly into distance, and the foreman was becoming worried. "He's sick," suggested the kindly, old, gray-haired bookkeeper, but the blonde stenographer insisted there must have been some tragedy at home. The foreman ended when the lad suddenly turned to the fat clerk and inquired: "Say, Mr. Jones, how do you spell Theban?"
